

Walk21 Hong Kong Conference Walkshop

Development, Urban Form and Mobility: Walking from Old Hong Kong to New Hong Kong

Since the 1970s, Hong Kong's urban development pattern changed dramatically, and with it its mobility networks. Our walk will take us from traditional street-level neighborhoods to new, mega-developments, and highlight walking patterns within each type of urban environment as well as between them, underscoring the challenges to improving walkability in Hong Kong as a whole.
